"THE NERVOUS MAN-MAN OF NERVE." Dr. Windship, the strong man who illustrated the first lecture on physical strength by fainting away twice before a Boston audience, has at last succeeded in delivering his sentiments and illustrating his positions in a less antithetical manner. Byles, Boston correspondent of the Tribune, thus speaks of his second appearance:

"Last night, however, he made another and most successful attempt, at the Music Hall, where there was air enough for all our occasions. His lecture was a very sensible one, on the importance of obedience to the physical laws of our nature, especially as to ventilation and muscular development. He believed that no adequate notion is yet had as to the degree to which the bodily strength may be increased. He had his atthat time not more than an average lad of styles, to be seen at sixteen or seventeen. By degrees he has je 10 increased his muscular powers up to their present extraordinary force. He is about five feet seven inches tall, and weighs, when in a good condition only 143 pounds. By way of showing us what he could do, he first other apparatus, a weight of 929 pounds, inweights! This he affirmed was more than any man had ever lifted before, in the same way, of whom there is any authentic record. A famous strong Englishman, in the last century, could lift between 700 and 800 pounds, and M. Bihio, the Belgian giant, 800 pounds. Both of these were older men, he being but 25, and he announced his intention of lifting 1,600 pounds by the time he is 30. Afterwards he lifted himself by his little finger so as to bring his chin higher than the laboring point, and afterwards by grasping the rope, without any other purchase.— Next he manipulated his dumb bells, weighing a hundred pounds each, and concluded with taking up a barrel of flour in his hands, and putting it on his shoulder, and walking about the stage with it. He stated apologetically, that he was not in as high condition as usual, and weighed seven pounds less

last Star Paper:
"Good healthy children that are put to bed at night when birds and chickens retire, are admirable wakeners in the morning. When they have slept their sleep full, there is no help for you. Wake they will, coo and frolic they will. All your hushing and humming are vain. Your efforts to put them to sleep only serve to wake you up! A bouncing boy, a year old, creeping out of his crib slyly, and pouncing upon his father's face with chirp and chuckle, is better than any alarm clock. A clock will soon run out its caeophonous rattle, but a child never runs down, or

But we have found a new method of waking early. Perched up upon our green hill alope beyond Peekskill, we have found it dif large lot of heavy Domestic GOODS to which ficult to sleep after about four o'clock of summer mornings. Every one knows that an effort of will sufficient to resist the approxing contracting sound in of ireast the approximation of the sufficient to resist the sufficient to resist the approximation of the sufficient to resist the suffic their notes at us with such sweet archery je 8

While we are resisting, we are waking.-Thus, this very morning all the trees about our little house were belfries, and rang out more chimes than were ever heard at Cologne or Autwerp. And, after the first recognition, we turned resolutely to the wall deter-mined to sleep on. But, "that's a robin" said our ears, and "that's bebolink;" "there goes a wren,' and sparrows, larks, phoebes, cat-birds, and many of their cousins in the orchard and woods, all joined to laugh us out of the idea of sleeping.

Now if any one wishes to know how to get up early, we will tell him. Go out of the city early in the day. Seek some tranquil place in the country where guns are never abound, and where the shaking of the leafor the distant crow of chanticleer is the loudest sound ever heard, except of birds. And then after walking all day among the fields, and hills, and forests, and supping upon milk that never dreamed of city milkman, go to bed by nine o'clock. If you do not wake before five next morning, report your case to us, and we will make a fresh prescription."
